TTT/ITT Race Course Description:

Course is 14 miles long on wide, scenic roads. Proceeding counter clockwise around the course, rides start with a decent heading down to West River Drive, then head towards Center City. After a turn around near the Art Museum, riders start the scenic journey to the other end of road for another turn around. Riders then repeat the second half of the course before heading up Black road for a final climb before the heading to the finish line. Roads will be completely closed to traffic but riders must respect the yellow line.

NOTE: Teams will be leaving in 30 second intervals, and individual riders will be leaving in 20s intervals. No aero equipment (USAC mass start legal only) allowed in collegiate races.

Circuit Race Course Description:

Proceeding counter-clockwise, the race starts in front of Philadelphia's landmark Memorial Hall and takes a fast, wide open curving descent onto scenic river side roads. A long, flat stretch allows racers to get their legs ready for a moderate climb up and around Strawberry Mansion. Another fast, curving descent delivers riders back to the river and a long drag race toward a swift climb and several quick corners before opening up for the sprint between the arches of the Pennsylvania Civil War Memorial.

Criterion Race Course Description:

Superficially a textbook, flat, fast, 4-corner traditional crit, the Temple Criterion is at the heart of Temple's main campus, and will take you around wide corners past undergraduate dorms, the Student Activity Center, and the practice facility for the university football team. The start/finish is just out front of the Bell Tower, Temple University's veritable agora, where prominent preachers & protestors alike have come to make their message heard—and the perfect place for racers to show off their latest victory salute.
